Is the website about the BTS universe vs. an intro to the band in general?

- Website isn't really meant to go into the BTS universe
- It should be more about who the members are and their music & messages
 - Portfolio-like website for BTS: focus on who are the members; what music and message have they produced

You don't have to do "Other Projects" page or "Major Awards & Accomplishments" page since it doesn't necessarily tie into the overall website of talking about BTS and their music

- Could maybe do pages for album "eras" instead of every individual albums
 - Artistry could also be talked about under each specific album/era instead of on a separate page although there could be a little blurb on the albums page about common influences across their music in general

Members > could have separate pages nested under main member page since some members (the rappers mainly) have released solo music

Design Inspo:

<https://spotify.design> : like the use of color that takes up a lot of screen; use of negative space, not too many square/boxes (except maybe in the albums section)

(I may add more website inspo to the shared Google Doc in the coming days.)
